No Out-Of-State Students Being Taken At Present

Until an expansion program already under way materializes into additional housing facilities for students, all out-of-state applicants for initial entrance to Alabama Polytechnic Institute for the quarter beginning March 18 are being temporarily refused admission, according to an announcement today by Charles W. Edwards, registrar.

Alabama Polytechnic Institute already has the largest enrollment (1626) of veterans of any college or university in the Southeast, and housing facilities of both the school and the town of Auburn have been greatly taxed.

Commenting on the situation, President L. N. Duncan said: "We are doing all that is humanly possible to provide living quarters for API students. Town residents in Auburn and Opelika are also cooperating in the expansion program. As soon as additional housing units, already approved by FPHA for delivery to Alabama Polytechnic Institute arrive, we feel that the situation will ease."

DVM's ATTEND SHORT COURSE

Graduate veterinarians from over the Southeast were in Auburn late in February for the annual Veterinarians' short course. Most of those present received their degrees from Auburn, and they spent many happy hours renewing acquaintances on the campus and in the city.

Those in attendance were:

Dr. A. J. Headrick, Murphy, N. C.; Dr. G. C. Thornton, Union Springs, Ala.; Dr. W. W. Glazener, Hendersonville, N. C.; Dr. A. T. Wiatt, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Dr. S. P. Galphin, Holly Hill, S. C.; Dr. Thos. Hayes, Clanton, Ala.; Dr. George Long, Winter Haven, Fla.; Dr. M. R. Avery, Jacksonville, Fla.; Dr. B. W. Dean, Bedford, Va.; Dr. W. J. Isbell, Jr., Langdale, Ala.; Dr. H. Grady Young, Thomasville, Ga.; Dr. Paul Vickers, Tallahassee, Fla.; Dr. W. W. Staples, Anniston, Ala.; Dr. E. A. Davis, Columbus, Ga.; Dr. J. W. McKee, Hickory, N. C.;

Dr. J. C. Rackley, Pelham, Ga.; Dr. C. W. Strock, Orangeburg, S. C.; Dr. C. B. Givens, Tazewell, Va.; Dr. E. P. Hamner, Summerville, Ga.; Dr. J. S. Cook, Union Springs, Ala.; Dr. J. I. Cornwell,

API Has Largest Enrollment Of Vets In Region

Stating that Alabama Polytechnic Institute has the largest enrollment of veterans of any college or university in the Southeast, Dr. John A. Broxson, director of the Auburn Regional Office of the Veterans Administration, in a talk before the Auburn Kiwanis Club, urged that every veteran should receive the facilities provided at Auburn for his occupational readjustment.

"Alabama Polytechnic Institute has an enrollment of 1,626 veterans this quarter and the Veterans Administration regional office on the college campus is busily engaged in interviewing and counseling these veterans," the speaker added.

Elaborating on the benefits to veterans falling under Public 16, Dr. Broxson pointed out that the federal government plans and pays for an in-service training program based on a three-way agreement between shop, college, and Veterans' Administration. "Reestablishment of occupational independence is the ultimate goal in these cases," he said.

Included in the processing program now in operation are (1) testing of all types, (2) psychological counseling, (3) occupational advice, and (4) aid in family relationships.

NUMBER OF AUBURN GRADS ARE SEEKING POLITICAL OFFICES

With time beginning to run short, the list of Auburn men in politics begins to increase daily. March first was the deadline for filing the proper papers with the Secretary of State. Numerous rumors have reached the office of the "Alumnews" of former students whose political ambitions have caused them to cast their lot in the political realm. The "Alumnews" wishes each of them the best of luck and includes the following list of those known.

Governor: Gordon Persons and Joe Poole

Comm. of Agric: Haygood Patterson, Sr.

Ala. Pub. Serv. Comm.: Jimmy Hitchcock

Prob. Judge—Dale Co.: Ike Parker

Prob. Judge—Lee County: Robt. (Bob) Betts and John T. Frazer

Prob. Judge—Lamar County: Ray B. Hankins

Prob. Judge—Talladega Co.: W. S. (Bill) Hurst

Circuit Judge (Place 2—5th Circuit): Thomas D. Samford, Jr.

The paper cannot sponsor any particular individual. We will gladly supplement the above list in future issues if the newcomers will advise us.

College Marks Another Birthday February 26

February 26, 1946 was the 74th anniversary of the signing of the act which approved the founding of Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

On February 26, 1872, the Alabama State Legislature accepted an offer whereby the East Alabama Male College, Auburn, was transferred to the state and renamed "Agricultural and Mechanical College."

On January 27, 1899, another act of the Alabama State Legislature changed the name of the institution to "Alabama Polytechnic Institute." At this time, part of the Act stated:

"The college has developed as originally designed into an institution where are taught not only the branches that relate to Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts but also the sciences and arts in general that relate to the industrial development of modern civilization."

From an original small handful of buildings and a small campus area, Alabama Polytechnic Institute has grown under the successive leadership of ten presidents until today there are 35 major buildings and numerous smaller structures on a campus consisting of 2,085 acres.

Alabama Polytechnic Institute is the oldest coeducational institution in Alabama, having first admitted women in 1892.

The famous and best loved institution was definitely commissioned to carry our four great purposes. It was charged with these four profound responsibilities:

1. The training of scientific leaders in all of the productive occupations of life.

2. The training of young men in Military Science and Tactics who, in time of war, will defend their Country.

3. The establishing of a great thoroughgoing and comprehensive research program.

4. The organizing and directing of a vast extension service to carry information and inspiration to all the people of the State wherever they may live.

No institution in the State has had a greater influence upon general educational progress than has Auburn. Rich and enduring contributions to educational foundations and policies have been and are now being made by graduates of Auburn. No educational institution in the world has inspired a more profound love from its Alumni than has Auburn.

COLLEGE CURRENTS

From thirty-seven to ninety per cent of Alabama's reading adults are unable to understand material published for their practical needs by public agencies of the state.

This fact was determined by Auburn's Research Interpretation Council through the analysis of more than 40 publications meant for wide distribution in the state.

This Council, established at Auburn in August, 1945, is designed to help agencies make their publications easy to read, attractive and usable.

It has as its purpose "the channelling of scientific information to all occupational and age groups of the state and region, to the end that living may be improved."

Its services are available to all public agencies and institutions in the state.

Functional unit of the Council is the Research Interpretation Service, organized under Director Paul Irvine, with a staff of writers, researchers and illustrators.

Technical services offered include readability analysis, rewriting, presentation, illustration, and research studies. Major emphasis is placed on providing means that will bring about better use of our natural and human resources.

The idea of "readability," or writing at a level suited to an intended audience, is not a new one. For years such publications as "The Reader's Digest" and "Liberty" have kept their "reading indexes" at levels which could be read with little effort by the largest groups of subscribers. The popularity of "The Reader's Digest," a leader in this field, is proof of the soundness of the plan.

Simplified writing not only enlarges the audience of a publication by reaching people of lower reading ability, but also makes reading convenient and comfortable for busy people of any reading level.

Various agencies and institutions have determined accepted "reading levels" of different population groups. For example, the average U. S. adult reads at an 8.4 level—about equal to that of a student half-way through the eighth grade. Alabama's adults have an average reading ability of 7.3. The rural adults of the state read at a 6.3 level.

The Research Interpretation Service studies reading levels of Alabama population groups to discover the extent to which publications are read.

The Service has cooperated with the Alabama Extension Service, the Soil Conservation Service, county agents and farm papers in revising written materials. Analysis of textbooks and development of teaching and reading materials for schools is undertaken in cooperation with teacher groups.

One of the major projects of the Service was the popularization of "Alabama Turkey Talk," a new 40-page booklet by John E. Ivey, Extension Poultryman.

The Service collaborated with Dr. A. M. Pearson in revising a circular called "Fertilization of

Alumnus of the Month

Born on July 25, 1907, at Decatur, Alabama, up where the cotton and the corn and 'taters grow, that's our alumnus of the month, Judge Seybourn Harris Lynne. A graduate of the class of 1927, with a BS degree and highest distinction. Then came an LLB in 1930, Judge of Morgan County Court, Judge, 8th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, and dozens of other college honors in academic, athletic and political field, active duty in the Army of the United States, relieved from active duty November 24, 1945, awarded bronze star for meritorious service in operations against the enemy, Judge of U. S. District Court for the Northern District of Alabama Jan. 6, 1946, and is now serving in that capacity. Next to Auburn, the judge admits he loves his wife, who is a southern gal, and little daughter Katherine Roberta Lynne. Judge Lynne will make the commencement address to the class graduating March 15, 1946.

This newspaper is not supposed to be representative of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute although it was made possible by the cooperation of the College. It is published by the Auburn Alumni Association for the purpose of furnishing the news of Auburn to the Alumni of the Institute in such a form as to be interesting to them. Our interest is AUBURN, the Institution, and anything that concerns the welfare of that Institution.

He Who Hesitates

Many of us in this busy world of today have oftentimes had the occasion to use the word alumni and its variations but have feared to do so for lack of a clear understanding of the word. We have hesitated on these occasions and just haven't had time to go into the matter. Alumni is a noun, masculine plural. The singular is alumnus. Feminine forms are alumnae and alumna, but they are used specifically to designate women; whereas, the masculine forms extend to both sexes in mixed parties.

Perhaps, by this time, you have about decided "so what", and why should I read further. Well think this over just a minute. When you say Auburn Alumni Association, it is incorrect usage of a noun, and in this form, our most puzzling word is being used in the form of an adjective. You thought we said it is a noun. It is. Now what are we going to do? We are incorporated under this title, and papers have been filed with every legal department in the State and Federal Government.

You are probably thinking that things are in a genuine mess, but they're not and that's why we're discussing this topic. The word alumni is countenanced as an adjective in some contexts such as alumni secretary, magazine, association, office, house, fund, and a few others will get by nearly anywhere. It's really about time we got down to the real purpose of our discussion. Here's the way this perplexing word is used:

He is an alumnus of Auburn. (Singular—Male)

They are alumni of Auburn. (Plural—Male and/or mixed male and female group)

She is an alumna of Auburn. (Singular—Feminine)

They are alumnae of Auburn. (Plural—Feminine)

Well, anyhow, they're all from Auburn, the alumni we speak of, and that helps, but before we give up, we think it necessary that you know the word is pronounced alum (as in Lum and Abner) and ni like it's nigh time we ended this 'cause now you know all we know. Hope you won't hesitate next time.

"Farm Fish Ponds" which was published in December. Another of Dr. Pearson's bulletins, "How to Manage Your Fish Pond," also a project of the Service, is now being printed.

A State Advisory Panel is planned to advise the Council regarding fields that need interpretation and to open the way for agencies to use the interpretation service.

The Research Interpretation Council was authorized by the Board of Trustees in June, 1944.

Its members, appointed by President L. N. Duncan, include: Ralph B. Draughon, Director of Instruction, Chairman; R. S. Poor, Director of the Research Council, Vice-Chairman; Roger W. Allen, Dean of the School of Science and Literature; Turpin C. Bannister, Dean of the School of Architecture; ture and the Arts; L. O. Brackeen, Extension Editor; Clyde H. Cantrell, Director of Libraries; J. E. Hannum, Dean of the School of Engineering; Zebulon Judd, Dean of the School of Education; Kenneth B. Roy, Agricultural Editor, Experiment Station; R. B. Shewalter, Director of Extension Teaching; and Marion W. Spidle, Dean of the School of Home Economics.

Offices of the Council are located in the Textile Engineering Building at A.P.I., on the floor above the Alumni Association Office.

Aim of the Council is to furnish the people of Alabama with more accurate information about the resources of our state, and how to make best use of them, in order that these people can work more efficiently toward raising their standards of living.

HAPPY CHATTER

By Harry M. (Happy) Davis
Executive Secretary

It would have done you good to have been with me in Montgomery last week. The Auburn group met. About 40 were present for a luncheon at which time officers were chosen. Frank McFadden, '21, newly elected president, immediately called for a meeting of the Executive Committee to take place later that week. The committee met on Thursday. These fellows were really taking things seriously. My friends, they meant business. Hartwell Davis, '28, was acting as legal adviser and member of the Executive Committee. The boys were anxious to remove all weaknesses and loop holes in their by-laws and they didn't mince words. Those present besides Frank and Hartwell were our President Frank Boyd, '14, Moreland Smith, '28, Tommy Belser, MS '38, and our friend whom Auburn claims and who claims Auburn, Sam Adams. These fellows are not taking the Alumni Association lightly.

They see the light. They know that through this association we can build our great educational institution and thereby add to our prestige, reflect in the glory of Auburn and maintain that rich, deep feeling of having done something for humanity . . . for education . . . for mankind . . . for everybody and everything . . . that's how far reaching it is. Did you, or do you, realize the scope of Auburn? Well, we are here, my friends, to maintain that which is Auburn . . . and thanks to those of you who are willing and able and have seen the light and felt the happiness which can come from doing for Auburn.

Was with one of our former presidents recently. I'm sure you all know Maurice Bloch, '09, who still holds forth in Selma. Maurice has an office overlooking the Alabama River. Well it was in this office that we had the finest discussion two people could have.

We argued, we praised, we laughed, we cussed, we differed, we agreed . . . and all about what? You guessed it, Auburn. What else could Maurice Bloch talk about but Auburn. No hard feelings, please understand, just ironing things out for the betterment of the association.

Came the surprising announcement that another good member had thrown his hat in the political ring and the resulting comment, "Well whatta you know!" James Franklin Hitchcock, '33, better known as Jimmy, truly one of the greats of all greats of Auburn. All-American Jimmy Hitchcock has entered the political field. He is a candidate for Associate Member, Public Service Commission Position No. 1. After a little speculation, however, most of us started thinking . . . why shouldn't Jim enter politics? He's bound to have a quick, agile, thinking mind. After leaving Auburn, he's been in the Navy in the physical training field which kept him alert and besides has given him some administrative training. We all know Jimmy has always been a clean living individual—I know he has cause I lived with him. Well, why shouldn't he enter any field he wants to if it interests him, and why shouldn't he make a success. There is no reason whatsoever. So, to you Jimmy Hitchcock, a man who has helped build the name of Auburn, we want to say that we have cast one vote for you when we voted you an Auburn all time great, and soon we cast another in May. All the success in the world, Jim.

Let a word to the wise be sufficient please ladies and gentlemen. A great many of us like to discuss and take our football rather seriously. Few of us take all phases of it into consideration and some of us actually do very little to really help build the kind of team we want. There is so much to be done, and part of the responsibility is yours. You have recently received a ticket to "A" Day. Won't you please return at least the purchase price to the "A" Club boys? It could be a remarkable morale builder. Your failure to do so could very easily reflect your attitude, and this could react. Thanks, I knew you would understand.

"My God," he whispered reverently, "My God." It had been forty years since R. M. "Mac" McCulloh, '05, 834 Salem Street, Lynnfield, Mass., had seen or returned to the campus. "Only guidance from Heaven could have brought about so many remarkable advances," he turned and said. Mac was standing behind the Main Building, hat in hand and lovely wife beside him, surveying the campus. Greater love hath no man than an Auburn man for his Alma Mater. Alert yourselves my good friends to that which is yours—Auburn. Bless you all!

ture students who should be interested in and connected with an institution that means so much in the development and prosperity of our State.

Have you had the pleasure and honor of sponsoring a student at Auburn who later became a great chemist, an outstanding engineer, a noted historian, a brilliant home economist, an All-American half-back, a perfect quarter-miler and others of the type that come from Auburn? Have you written a constructive letter to President Duncan, to the Dean of your College, to your old professor or to the Director of Athletics? A letter to these and to the Heads of other Departments about boys and girls with special abilities would help Auburn and give you a feeling of pride in a job well done.

If you know of anyone not hearing from Happy Davis and the Alumni Office it simply means that they cannot be located. Happy is an old FBI sleuth and is on your trail and soon you will be in the fold wearing a suit of orange and blue. Contact the home office.

"Miss Janie" Away For Rest Period

Mrs. Janie Reid, housemother for Sigma Nu and the oldest in point of service on the Campus has been directed by her physician to temporarily discontinue her activities and do nothing but rest. "Miss Janie" as she is affectionately known by everybody is with her son, Gene Reid, '21, Room 1501, 411 7th Street, St. Louis 1, Missouri. Our guess is they won't keep "Missy" down long—bless her heart.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

By Frank Boyd

Now is the time for every good Auburn man and woman to come to the aid of our grand old Institution. During the war we had our problems—the boys and girls departed for the Armed Services, the faculty was called to help carry the burdens of industry, commerce and government and our athletic teams and coaches, being better prepared, were first up front where team work and leadership were so essential. While many of our girls joined the various services and performed noble deeds, we owe much to those who remained behind to keep the old campus fires burning and be on hand to greet those returning from the far flung battle fields of the world.

Auburn has had many such experiences in her long and useful history. Her history dates from the Civil War and in every war since she has made outstanding contributions. Her trained leaders have met every test whether in war or peace, in the school room or on the farm, at the desk or by the forge and so it is in every trade and profession.

A fine record we have made but that is just history. We are now faced with the realities of today. What are we old timers going to do about the Institution that has the job of training our own sons and daughters? Have you been back to see first hand the problems involved in changing from war to peace? To appreciate all the fine accomplishments of the past and to visualize the needs and possibilities of the future you should visit your Alma Mater. As of old she will greet you with open arms and create within you a burning desire to be a part of the future as you were of the past.

In my own case I get a thrill everytime I meet an alumnus and talk over old times and acquaint him with current happenings on "the plains". To carry the story of Auburn—old and new—to ex-students who have not visited the "loveliest village" nor been in touch with the Alumni Office since their student days is like re-enacting the famous journey to carry the "Message to Gracia".

Our job is to carry the message about Auburn to friends and fu-

War Eagle!

BY JIMMY COLEMAN

ALL AMERICAN POLITICIAN

Jimmy Hitchcock, '33, is running again, but this time the pigskin is in the form of a briefcase; for Jimmy is a candidate in the May primaries for associate member of the Alabama Public Service Commission.

Jimmy, who was separated from active duty with the Navy in October, captained the undefeated Bengals of 1932 and made All-American half-back along with the deal. In that year he steered Auburn to glorious wins over Birmingham-Southern, Erskine, Duke, Georgia Tech, Tulane, Mississippi, Howard, Florida, and Georgia. The following year Jimmy captained the baseball team and was named All-American shortstop.

STORY STOPPERS

Speaking of War Eagle—there are many interesting stories concerning the origin of the famous old battle cry of the Plains, and here is an interesting one from M. H. Killingsworth, class of '14. "During the Auburn pep rally held in Langdon Hall the night preceding the annual game with Georgia Tech in 1912, speechmaking was in order. The students heard from Coach Mike Donahue, Tom Bragg, and Dr. George Petrie. When the last word was spoken, Gus Graden, Auburn's most zealous fan of that day who hailed from Greenwood, South Carolina, leaped to a nearby bench and yelled 'War Eagle!' It has since become an Auburn war cry, a slogan with which to conjure".

The following day Auburn defeated Tech 27-7 in Atlanta, and all afternoon and far into the night "War Eagle" pierced the air from groups of Auburn boys. There was little tranquility in Atlanta that night.

DIDJA KNOW

That Monk Gafford, back from Germany and once more a civilian, has signed to play with the Miami pro football eleven which is coached by Jack Meagher . . . Babe McGhee, end in 1940, is re-enrolling here. He will not be eligible for football, but he intends to try for the track team. Babe has one more year of schooling in a five-year architecture course . . . Ends Carl Fletcher, Teedie Faulk, and backs Zac Jenkins and Billy Ball are the only Tiger prewar lettermen back in the fold . . . Ralph Beard, Kentucky freshman cage wizard, is a second cousin to assistant track coach and business manager Jeff Beard.

Two Powell athletes at Auburn is from Pleasant Home, Ala., go to make a confusion situation. and Frank Powell, football guard, Jack Powell, basketball forward, hails from Mt. Pleasant, Tenn.

WHO TIGERS, BACK UP!

RUNNING BACKWARDS—Here, a portion of Auburn's spring practice grid candidates, under the direction of track coach Wilbur Hutsell, are shown getting the know-how on the technique of backing up in a hurry. There are many cases in games where gridders find themselves going backwards to bat down passes—long and short.

Alumni Will View Tigers On 'A' Day

Alumni, here's your chance to get an early peep at Auburn's post-war Tigers. Make arrangements now to be on hand at Auburn Stadium March 9th to view the gala A-Day program that will be packed full of thrills and fun for all.

Coach Carl Voyles is going to turn the football squad over to his assistants and hunt for a good seat in the stands. Then he is going to look over his material and see how the boys look from a spectators' viewpoint when the Oranges and Blues tangle in an intra-squad scrap.

The program is lined up something like this: Pie-eating contest, 1:30; greasy pig chase, 1:40; greasy pole-climb, 1:50; sack race, 2:05; tug-o-war, 2:15; kick-off for the Orange-Blue football game, 2:30. During half-time Miss Babe Sahm, senior from Birmingham, will be crowned queen for A-Day, and fraternity freshmen will compete in a one-mile race. A tea dance will be held after the game from four until six.

Happy Davis will act as master of ceremonies and Leland Childs, Montgomery radio announcer, will broadcast by public address an account of the football game.

Elmer Salter Back On Publicity Job

Elmer "Square" Salter, '28, is back in the harness as sports publicity director after 45 months in the Air Forces. He was discharged with the rank of major from the Maxwell separation base last month.

Having held the publicity position for 14 years prior to entering the service, Squire received many commendations for his work—one in 1941 from New York scribe Eddie Brietz as the writer grabbing off more news space than any other college press-agent in the nation.

Boots Chambliss Returns

(This is a second of a series of articles introducing the Football coaching staff).

William Henry (Boots) Chambliss, head line coach, was born July 12, 1911, at Montgomery, Alabama.

He is married to the former Elsie Oakley of Pine Hill, Alabama. They have two children, Lloyd Ellwood, age three, and Barbara, age one.

GAFFORD SIGNS WITH MIAMI CLUB

Coach Jack Meagher, of Miami's entry in the All-America Pro-Football League informed the Birmingham News by long-distance telephone that Monk Gafford, former Auburn star back, had signed a contract to play with Miami next season. Gafford, recently discharged from the Army, was at his home in Letohatchie, Ala.

He was named on the Associated Press second All-American team in 1942 before receiving a commission in the Army. Gafford captained a team in the Army's ETO Football League and was named on the Army All-Star eleven while serving in Germany in 1945.

Monk Gafford, Auburn's great All-American halfback of '42 is also All-Germany according to reports seeping stateward from once-proud Adolph's now-diminished domain.

A headline story complete with picture in the Army overseas publication Stars and Stripes was all praise to the former Deposit Flash who gained national recognition at Auburn with his peers passing, punting, and running.

Dated Nov. 27 at Frankfurt, the service newspaper article, in part, is reprinted below:

"A sharp-striking 71st Division team achieved a 20-6 triumph today at Victory Park over the 3rd Infantry Regt. in an interarmy contest distinguished by General Joseph T. McNarney's first public appearance as USFET commander.

The 3rd Regt., unbeaten and untied 7th Army champion, proved a sucker for the Red Circle's forward passing. In the third quarter and again in the last, Monk Gafford passed to receivers in the end zone for scores. The first of the touchdown tosses by the former Auburn back was caught by end Don LeBlanc and gave the 3rd Army champions a 7-0 lead going into the final quarter.

After the 3rd scored on a pass making the score 7-6, Gafford completed another scoring pass—this time to end Joe Mencin.

There was no one like Gafford in the 3rd Regt. backfield today, which in a large measure explains the Cockades' defeat.

Boots played guard position on the high school football eleven at Cloverdale in Montgomery, and was named to the All-Time Cloverdale team. He enrolled at the Georgia Military Academy at Millidgeville, Georgia, and attained football glory there, being named to the mythical eleven of that institution's all-time gridders.

In the fall of 1930, Boots entered A.P.I. weighing 170 pounds. His freshman coach was Jack Cannon, an All-American from Notre Dame. Boots was a one-sport man, lettering at the guard position in football his next three years under the tutelage of line coach Roger Kiley and head mentor Chet Wynne. He was alternate captain during his senior year at the Plains, and in 1934 he was appointed line coach by Jack Meagher.

After two seasons of coaching under his belt, Boots began to draw praise from sports writers and coaches throughout the Southeast. One scribe said of him in 1936:

"Boots Chambliss, one of the three or four greatest modern guards to play football in Alabama, has won his spurs as a varsity coach. Judging by his results, I am inclined to believe that Boots could make a respectable guard out of a milk cow".

His coaching career interrupted in April of 1942, Boots entered the army with a reserve commission of a first lieutenant in the field artillery. He served forty-two months, chiefly in the Pacific area, participating in the costly invasion of Okinawa. He returned home safely and was discharged in October of 1945.

Chambliss has turned out many athletes trained close to the limit of efficiency. Bo Russell and Happy Sivell continued on the gridiron as pro stars after graduation from Auburn. Other standout Chambliss students who have entered the coaching field and other professions are Milton Howell, Frank Gant, Nick Ardillo, Max Morris, Ernest Mills, Vic Costello, Sam McCroskey, Jack Cornelius, Junie Burns, and Jack Ferrell.

"The first thing I look for in an athlete", Boots says, "is enthusiasm and the correct mental attitude. Then if he is eager and tries hard enough, he will play ball."

FRANK MCFADEN IS AUBURN CLUB HEAD FOR MONTGOMERY

The Auburn Club of Montgomery held its annual election recently. All officers were unanimously elected. Newly elected were Frank McFaden, '21 President; Moreland Smith, '28, Vice-President; T. A. Belser MS '38, Secretary & Treasurer. The executive committee consists of Hartwell Davis, '28 and G. W. "Doc" Penton, '09. The outgoing President, Doc Penton, was praised by all present for his outstanding work during the preceding year. The Montgomery Club meets every Monday at the Whitley Hotel.

Clink!
"Oh, younder see the morning clink,

The sun is up and so must I,
To wash and dress and eat and drink,
And look at things and talk and think
And work—and God knows why."

"Oh often have I washed and dressed,
And what's to show for all my pain
Oh let me lie abed and rest
Ten thousand times I've done my best
And all to do again."

HONORED

WILBUR HUTSELL
Auburn

Was recently appointed chairman of the National Field and Track Committee. He succeeds Tug Wilson, Big Ten Commissioner. Hutsell is the first Southerner to hold a major position in a national committee on athletics. Hutsell will celebrate his 25th anniversary at Auburn this year.

New Men's Dorm To Be Constructed

Bids for a new dormitory for men are being received at Auburn, according to a recent announcement from the President's office. The new building will be the first of its general type since 1940.

The building will have four stories and is to be "H" shape. It will contain 92,741 square feet of floor space. It will be built to harmonize in form and material with the present newer buildings on the campus.

Made necessary by the present housing shortage and overcrowded situation, the new building will house 450 male students and will be located on Magnolia Avenue between the Alumni Office in the Textile Building and the Alpha Phi Fraternity House.

Present conditions in the construction field will no doubt hamper Auburn's general building program, numbering 12 buildings. The program consists of an engineering laboratory, naval science building, men's dormitory, central heating plant, agricultural building, office and warehouse building for department of buildings and grounds, forestry building, auditorium or student union building, administration building, abattoir, classroom annex, and women's dormitory.

Previous plans for the general program gave priorities to the engineering laboratory, but with the sudden enrollment increase, it became necessary first to house the students. The engineering laboratory is badly needed and assumes the position of the next to be built. Present shortages of engineering instructional equipment also prevent the building of the laboratory now.

Auburn is one of the first schools in the country to reconstruct prefabricated surplus property into living quarters. Veterans are now living in apartments obtained from Florida.
